Dear Mr. Caufield:

We disagree with your email below. What we have told you is that we are considering proposing a compromise.

Although we were not able to do so today, we expect to get back to you soon.

Sincerely,

Diane L. Gibson

Subject: RE: Response to April 19 2007 Email

Ms. Gibson:

We raised this issue with you BEFORE you sent out your "Final" Privilege log yesterday. However, the same objections and refusal to produce documents continued to exist after our meet and confer. You had the opportunity to amend you privilege logs and fix the problem and refused to do so and unequivocally stated yesterday that you would not be producing the subject documents.

Thus, a impasse has been reached and we will be immediately addressing this issue with Magistrate Judge Laporte.

Very truly yours,

5/2/2007

Subject: Response to April 19 2007 Email

Dear Mr. Caufield:

We write to respond to one aspect of your email yesterday. As I mentioned in our telephone call yesterday, in response to your April 12, 2007 letter we are considering what compromise may be possible to resolve issues short of another discovery motion, this time regarding your comments about our privilege log. We expect to get back to you soon, we hope as soon as Monday.

You have shown no necessity for an "ex parte" application "by the end of this week" on these privilege log issues as you discussed yesterday, especially as our final privilege log was only due yesterday. Further, you have not demonstrated any necessity for an ex parte application, and you have not met and conferred with us about any such need. For these reasons among others, any such ex parte application would be inappropriate.

Sincerely,

Diane L. Gibson
